

SOLENT BRANCH LECTURE

ROYAL
AERONAUTICAL SOCIETY

Planes, trains and automobiles: Experiences in human factors in transport.

Professor Mark Young, Professor of Human Factors, University of Southampton

CEMAST

26th February 2024

This lecture will give an introduction to the varied applications of human factors across transportation contexts. Drawing on experience in aviation, rail and automotive, the speaker will describe case studies from all three modes illustrating how human factors can improve safety, efficiency and satisfaction, as well as helping us to understand what happened when things have gone wrong. Examples from accident investigations will be used to show how the human factors involved are not just about the last person who touched it, but go much deeper into the system.

VENUE

Fareham College - CEMAST
Lee-on-the-Solent
PO13 9FU

Locate using what3words.com
<https://w3w.co/sketch.spin.driver>

15:00 - Doors open
15:30 - Lecture starts

FREE ADMISSION

All welcome

www.solent-raes.org.uk/lectures

Main image copyright